

Revised 31/1/19

Senior Project Manager – AASB

TECHNICAL ACCOUNTING EXPERTISE

MELBOURNE CBD + SOME INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL

The Australian Accounting Standards Board (AASB) is a federal government entity established to develop, issue and maintain Australian accounting standards. AASB contributes to confidence in the economy and trust in external reporting by developing, issuing and maintaining principles-based accounting and reporting standards.

Our client is seeking two Senior Project Managers to drive and manage technical and research projects affecting both private and public sectors. The work is complex and requires high-level technical accounting expertise and project management skills.

In this senior role reporting to the Technical Director, you have responsibility to ensure quality outcomes for all aspects of technical and research projects under your oversight including Board papers, Standards, Exposure Drafts and other publications; you coach and oversee your team's work; you identify developing issues while considering the impact on AASB work programs; and you project manage overall delivery.

This role provides an excellent networking and relationship building opportunity with Australian and international stakeholders, regulators, practitioners, professional bodies and industry groups on various matters relating to the work of the AASB.

To be successful, you have a technical background in financial reporting with a sound knowledge of Australian corporate law and legislative reform together with a comprehensive understanding of Australian and International Accounting standards; you understand good corporate governance principles and practices; you have excellent project management and communication skills with a network in relevant circles; and you play an appropriately senior management role across the AASB.

You are tertiary qualified, a Chartered Accountant or equivalent with relevant senior experience. An attractive and competitive remuneration package will appeal to the right candidate.
